On Tuesday night the regular Literary Meeting of the Epworth League was held at the residence of Dr. R. D. Hurd. The members who were placed on the program were not up with their parts. The vocal solo by Miss Anna Lilly being the only part of the program that was prepared. The refreshments were delicious.

Wear with business cars of the week and the rumble and bustle of city life, three of Tazewell's young men, Messrs. E. M. Lilly, Will Millard and Fred Pennington took a spin into the country on their wheels. About 8 o'clock Sunday morning they headed toward Burke's Garden, arriving at Mr. Meek Snaps' just in time to partake of a bountiful dinner. They spent a few hours after dinner with Mr. Snaps, after which they thanked him for his hospitality, and departed about 3 o'clock, arriving here about 6 o'clock. They report a hazardous ride down the mountain.

A few days ago the editor was taken with a very severe cold that caused him to be in a most miserable condition. It was undoubtedly a case of grippe and recognizing it as dangerous he took immediate steps to bring about a speedy cure. From the advertisement of Chamberlain's Cough Remedy and the many good recommendations included therein, we concluded to make a first trial of the medicine. To say that it was satisfactory in its results, is putting it very mildly, indeed. It acted like magic and the result was a speedy and permanent cure. We have no hesitancy in recommending this excellent cough remedy to anyone afflicted with a cough or cold in any form.—The Tazewell Republican, Libertytown, Maryland. The 25 and 50 cent sizes for sale by J. E. Jackson, druggist.

Memorial.

In memory of Elizabeth Barnett, who was born in Tazewell county, Va., Oct. 5th, 1839, and died Oct. 15th, 1897. The life for the last twelve years was a beautiful example of the sustaining power of the Christian religion. During that length of time she was an invalid and never left her home. Those who were with her most say she was never heard to in quarrel or complain of God's mysterious providence in afflicting her so long. The writer of this has, Sunday afternoons, held many religious services in her home and she would invariably send for most of her neighbors and near friends to join in song and prayer. Often on these occasions would she clap her hands and speak of God's love and peace which she felt in her heart. Her last days on earth seemed her happiest, and just before her spirit left its clay tenement she looked towards the window and said: "This is the brightest day I have ever seen." In her dying moments her neighbors were round the bedside, and she expressed her appreciation of their love and kindness toward her during her protracted affliction, and being conscious that her time to leave this world had come, she "Welcomed life's expectant close, and sank in permanent repose."

Notable Deaths.

Chicago, Oct. 19.—George M. Pullman, the inventor and manufacturer of railway cars bearing that name, died this morning of heart disease.

Mr. Pullman was in apparently good health when he retired last night, not having complained of any ailment, and nobody was present when the end came, at his home at Eighteenth street and Prairie avenue. Mrs. Pullman was in New York at the time of his death. She left for Chicago this morning.

Mr. Pullman was fifty-three years of age. He was the founder of the town of Pullman, and revolutionizer of railroad traveling. He was born in Chautauque county, New York, on March 3, 1831, and was one of seven children.

His parents were poor country people. He started to work in a country store at Westfield, N. Y., at $40 per year, and has been successful in all his business dealings ever since.

Charles A. Dana.

Charles A. Dana, editor of the New York Sun, died at his home at Glen Cove, Long Island, at 1:20 o'clock Sunday afternoon.

Mr. Dana's death had been expected for several hours, and his family and physicians were at his bedside when the end came. His condition had been such for several months that the members of his family had kept themselves in constant readiness to go to his bedside at any moment.

The only announcement which the Sun has made of the death of its famous editor consists of the following ten words, printed at the head of the editorial column: "Charles Anderson Dana, editor of the Sun, died yesterday afternoon."

This was all that told the readers of that paper that its editor, the man who had made it famous, had passed away. The brevity of the notice occasioned some surprise in newspaper circles, for Mr. Dana was a man of more than national reputation, but the explanation is simple. One of the last wishes Mr. Dana expressed to his son when he knew that his end was not far off was this:

"Paul, when I am gone, don't have a long obituary of me printed in the Sun. Simply announce my going away; that is all."

And his request was heeded.

THE REPUBLICAN CAMPAIGN.

Candidate McCaull Satisfied With the Conference With McKinley.

Washington, D. C., Oct. 19.—Captain McCaull, the Lynchburg candidate for governor, was in Washington Saturday and Sunday. He left this city for the purpose of opening his campaign at Halifax. The captain was seen and expressed himself as being well satisfied with the recent conference of his supporters with the President, held at the White House the early part of last week. He is satisfied the President will give approval to the ticket nominated. According to the supporters of the ticket the campaign in Virginia from this time onward until election day will be vigorously contested and speakers will be sent out to every county in the State. While little or no help is expected from outside Republicans, owing to the bigger contests going on in New York, Maryland, Kentucky and Ohio, yet the Lamb Republicans assert that there will be no lack of speakers for the Virginia campaign. Captain McCaull himself is one of the best stump speakers in the State, and he, of course, will personally engage in the work. The other candidates on the ticket will also go upon the stump. Roller is said to be a good stump speaker, but not much is known about James Lyons in this particular.

In addition to the candidates it is expected that both of the Republican congressmen from Virginia, General Walker and Hon. Jacob Yoest, will take part in the campaign. It is stated today that Dr. Yoest might also go on the stump in his section of the State. He is an active worker, and it is said that McCaull's friends are anxious to enlist him in the service. With the exception of General Walker, who has declared for the ticket, none of the anti-convention or Bowden faction are expected to take any part in the campaign, although it is said that several will vote for the ticket.

While in the city Captain McCaull was questioned as to the position his faction would take in regard to the federal patronage. The captain's reply was that the question of federal patronage had not entered into the contest. Other members of the Lamb faction are of the opinion that several of the members of their party will be provided for by the President.

TUNNEL TO JERSEY CITY.

Plans for an Immense Project Before the Brooklyn Aldermen.

New York, Oct. 19.—The plans for building a railroad tunnel from Brooklyn to Jersey City under Manhattan Island progressed another step today. William H. Baldwin, president of the Long Island railroad, and also president of the tunnel company, presented a petition to the Brooklyn board of aldermen for the necessary grant and franchises for operating through and under the city. By the terms of the Atlantic avenue improvement bill passed last winter, the board of aldermen is authorized to grant right of way through the streets for the tunnel. As soon as this right is granted the company must proceed to secure by purchase or condemnation the property necessary along the way.

The plans for the scheme contemplate a tunnel running to depth from three to one hundred and thirty feet from the Flatbush railroad station under the East and North rivers to Jersey City. The tunnel is to be twenty-two feet eight inches wide, and fifty and one-half feet high. It will contain a double track railroad, which is to be operated by electricity. The tunnel will go beneath the East river below the Brooklyn bridge towers. It will be reached at the city hall, Brooklyn, and near Nassau street, New York, by gigantic elevators.

INDIANS MAY EMIGRATE.

Action of Congress May Induce Them to Go to Mexico.

Chelsea, I. T., Oct. 19.—Much excitement has been caused by the proposed emigration of the Indians to Mexico next Spring, when the proposed United States laws are to be put into effect in the Territory. It seems that the colony is organized and already awaiting the time to go.

A. E. Ivry, a leading full-blood, who is secretary of the association and who was in this city, said: "You may say it is on foot. It is a big move. I have all the plans and details, but cannot give them out. There are Cherokee and Choctaw representatives in Mexico now."

"It is to be hoped, though, that our people will never be driven from their homes here by the harsh action of Congress. This country is dear to our people. They bought and paid for it. The United States pledged its solemn vow that it should be the home of our people for all times, but it begins to look as if that pledge is to be broken."

"If we are forced to give up our lands and government, you may be sure we will place no further dependence in anything the United States may agree to do, but will place ourselves under the protection of a Government that has some regard for its treaty promises."

"Communication is going on among our people and the Mexican Government and the prospect that we shall reach a satisfactory agreement for removing to that country in a body is good. Our intention is to arrange to have an independent State in Mexico—a purely Indian State, of course."

CONFEDERATE VETERANS.

Grand Camp Convened in Richmond Last Monday.

The grand camp of Confederate Veterans convened in the city of Richmond and continued in session three days. An interesting feature of the meeting was the presentation of memorials to Major Washington Taylor, of Norfolk, quartermaster general, and Captain T. C. Morton, of Staunton, inspector general, both of whom have served the grand camp faithfully and efficiently. General Fitzhugh delivered the address in one case and Judge Theodore S. Garnett, of Norfolk, in the other. The last day of the grand camp was devoted to exercises at the Soldiers' Home.

SALEM'S BIG CONFLAGRATION.

A Whole Row of Houses Destroyed By Fire.

About 2 o'clock Saturday morning fire broke out in one of the five pretty and substantial two story residences, on Chestnut street, known as the Kasey row, and in less than one hour they had all gone up in smoke, leaving only ashes and chimneys to mark the remains of the disastrous work of the fiery fiend.

The fire was first discovered in the pantry of the house occupied by Mrs. Mary Coleman, a widow and her two daughters. According to Mrs. Coleman's story she was awakened by a noise and remarked to one of her daughters that it must be rats. Her daughter, though upon raising up from the bed saw that the pantry was on fire and as speedily as possible gave the alarm. Robt. Kasey, son of Col. T. A. Kasey, who lives at the old home place near by, heard the screams of the woman and hastened to give the alarm by ringing the fire bell. The fire company promptly responded with chemical engine and reels of hose, but before they reached the scene the house had almost been totally destroyed by the devouring flames and as the houses were all close together and soon in ashes, as the firemen were powerless to cope with the destroying elements, because of a poor water supply. There is a four inch water main on Chestnut street but a two inch pipe connects it with the four inch main on Union street, consequently it was impossible to fight the flames with such a small stream of water, and as the chemical engine is only used in cases of incipient fire and to protect outlying buildings, it was inadequate in a fire of this magnitude.

The houses were all occupied but one and nearly all of the furniture and household goods of the occupants were saved. The following are the families who lived in the houses: Mrs. Coleman and two daughters, J. M. Grisson and family, M. M. Butler and family, Jno. Garst and family and Mrs. Oliver, a widow and two daughters.

The origin of the fire is unknown. It was probably the largest conflagration that ever occurred in Salem.

These houses were erected by Col. T. A. Kasey during the boom of '90 at a cost of $7,700 and were insured for $5,800, but the policy expired about eight months ago and had never been renewed.

Col. T. A. Kasey is now in Springfield, Tenn. in the interest of his business.

Cattle.

The cattle export trade of Virginia has steadily grown from the day of small things to an item of such importance that quite a fleet of steamers are now engaged in this business from these harbors, and when one stops to realize that 24,000 beef cattle were shipped from Norfolk and Newport News, of which nearly or quite 6,000 were raised in Virginia, the value to the State can readily be seen.

The bluegrass region comprised in this State by Tazewell, Russell, Wise, Scott, Lee, Wythe and Lynch counties mainly furnishes the greater number, while quite a few are brought here from the upper end of the Shenandoah valley. This has only been accomplished through the work of two or three men, and the United States government is very stringent in its orders and furnishes all the backing asked for as result.—Norfolk Pilot.

Steam Boat Blows up.

Charlottesville, Pa., Oct. 18.—The boiler of the steamer George B. Ford, belonging to the Pittsburgh Glass Company, exploded today, killing Captain James Ryan and William Patterson, the cook, and demolishing the craft, which was moored near the company's factory, at this point. Patterson's body was blown 600 yards upon the bank. Windows in the town of Charlottesville were broken by the shock of the explosion. The engineer of the boat, who was on board at the time, had a marvelous escape from death.

Kiss Costs Him $15.

St. Paul, Minn., Oct. 18.—A few evenings ago Harry McIntyre met pretty Miss Augusta Koempel on University Avenue, and although they had never met before, they walked and talked, and he finally kissed her fervently, despite her protests. She caused his arrest, and today McIntyre pleaded guilty.

The court held he was guilty of technical assault, and imposed a $15 fine, which hereafter will be regarded as the official price of a stolen kiss in St. Paul.

What Cured The Baby.

"Hood's Sarsaparilla has cured our baby of running sores for which we doctored her for a long time. It has relieved me of rheumatism. My wife was troubled with sick headache and could get nothing to relieve her until she took Hood's Pills." H. L. Pickney, Lock Box 9, Ellenboro, W. Va.

Mrs. Alice Freeman Palmer, lectured on the highest education of woman in Worcester, Mass., recently said: "Why has so much money been given for this work? Because people know now that the search for knowledge does not make the woman's heart have less love and the soul less faith."

Mrs. A. E. Paul, the woman supervisor of the street cleaning in Chicago, is thus spoken of by her employees: "Woman she comes in happy in morning and stay so all day. She say 'How do' and other nice things, and then we do good work. She see it and say so. That makes us feel good and we work more. Woman all right."
